Department of Marathi

2.6.2 Attainment of Programme Outcomes, Programme Specific Outcomes and Course Outcomes are evaluated by the institution

The Department of Marathi offers a masters programme through which students develop their literary sense, literary insight, creative writing skills and personality with values. The syllabus is well defined with PO, PSO and CO and is informed to the students through the introductory lectures. Teachers discuss the PO, PSO and Co in the group meetings.

The attainment of Po is measured by analyzing students progress through class-room interaction, seminars, group discussion. It is also calculated through achievement of students through NET/SET Exam, participation and performance of students in various competitions like Poem Writing, Story Writing, Essay Writing, Eloquence, debate etc. The skills like comparing, communication skill, soft skills are also observed. It is also measured from the result of annual examination.

Specific Outcome (SO) is calculated through analysis of students specific performance. The teachers observe the students progress in many aspects. Research topics, field work helps the students to think in new direction. The young minds are ignited with the objective values and rational thinking. This method transforms the student into well disciplined student with new insight regarding the subject.

Co is measured by calculating students progress in the subject. For this result of semester exam is considered. Another method followed is teacher's feedback in the classroom. The classroom interaction is helpful to consider the students understanding of the subject knowledge. It helps to plan and implement the student centric methods for enhancing the teaching learning. The progress of research students is continuously monitored by Research Supervisors until the qualitative research work done.
