About Workshop:

A learning management system (LMS) is a software application for the administration, documentation, tracking, reporting and delivery of electronic educational technology (also called e learning) courses or training programs. While teachers are certainly trained and mentally equipped in academic subject, but they need training to handle new technology and understand educational psychology. It is important for teachers to understand the student's need in this technology scenario and helping them to achieve their goals. It is therefore necessary that teachers must acquire the knowledge required to deal with the new technology in research and teaching methods. Online learning opportunities, use of open educational resources and other technologies can increase educational productivity by accelerating the rate of learning; reducing cost associated with instrumental material or programme delivery; better utilising teachers' time. Universities are also expected to have a strategy to ensure that the positive outcome of these innovations in teaching percolate to the classroom level. Therefore to stress the adaptation of new technology in research and teaching, we are embarking on the task of organising "Train the Trainers: Six Days Training program on Soft Skills, LMS & E-Content" for University Faculty.
